Vandals giving us a bad rap: Graffiti pros

Artists say most taggers avoid murals around Winnipeg out of respect

Professional graffiti artists say a gang of taggers is using their name when defacing Winnipeg property.

The W2K graffiti crew is employed by local businesses to create murals on their properties, but say the illegal tags are ruining their reputation.

"I don't know who's doing it or who they are," said Scott Henry, a mural artist and founding member of W2K. He said legitimate murals prevent graffiti, and he's feeling frustrated.

"People who do tag on walls, that really brings people like me, who are trying to make a name for themselves legally, down."
BROCK CRAWFORD, W2K SPOKESPERSON

Other members of the crew say their goal is to elevate the quality of their art and the city, said Brock Crawford, W2K's spokesperson.

An example of a mural by W2K can be found at the corner of St. Mary's Road and Guay Avenue.

Graffiti removal costs the City of Winnipeg more than $1 million yearly, said a spokesperson with Take Pride Winnipeg.

Fake creds could mean fatal meds: Pharmacist

Some Winnipeg pharmacists said they were shocked when police announced criminal charges Thursday against a former employee of the Manitoba Pharmaceutical Association (MPhA).

"It's a privilege for pharmacists to be licensed to practise our profession," said Broadway Pharmacy's Scott Bowles. "Dispensing medications to people without adequate knowledge of the medications can result in harm to them. Not knowing proper dosing, not knowing drug interactions could be fatal."

MPhA

The Manitoba Pharmaceutical Association is responsible for licensing pharmacists in Manitoba and all pharmacists must be licensed.

However, Bowles said he has faith in the MPhA. Registrar Ron Guse said the organization responded quickly, firing the employee and contacting police.

The quick action maintains confidence in the profession. METRO

Internet downloading is hurting sales at music stores around Winnipeg, but one unexpected old-school item is carrying them along.

"We can't get enough vinyl," said Neil Thornduycraft, owner of the struggling music store Entertainment Exchange. "It's a great market. If we get collections in, they're gone in a matter of days."

Thornduycraft said he is not sure how much longer his traditional CD store will continue on, noting several others have closed their doors in recent months, like CD Plus.

He's not alone in saying that it's vinyl sales that are helping keep the music going. The idea of having a unique record is more appealing to some people than owning a CD or mp3, said the owner of Into the Music.

"It's kind of a reaction against the digital culture," said Greg Tonn. "The presence of a record collection on your wall has a more personal meaning than a file on a computer."

Sara Stasiuk, executive director of Manitoba Music, added that local musicians are also victims of downloading.

"Without a centralized place to buy music, consumers and fans have less of chance of accessing local music," Stasiuk said.

Former employee of the MPhA is alleged to have taken money from people seeking accreditation to forge credentials ◐ Pharmacists with forged credentials worked in Manitoba

A former Manitoba Pharmaceutical Association (MPhA) employee is facing criminal charges and two former Manitoba pharmacists had their credentials yanked as part of an ongoing investigation police said Thursday.

Police allege that a 49-year-old woman with the MPhA took money to forge pharmacist credential documents.

One of the pharmacists who had his licence pulled is Rafat Kirolos.

He now works for his cousin, Toronto pharmacist Lourice Iskander.

Iskander said he does not work as a pharmacist because his language skills and other qualifications fall short.

Iskander said she is aware of his problems in Manitoba, but he was the one who was taken advantage of.

"I think the lady, she was lying for him," she said.

"The lady told him something, she told him he can get his licence from there without some exam, or something like that.

"I don't know the details, but I know some lady's cheating."

Harper says sorry in furor over screening

Election 2011

Stephen Harper has finally said sorry.

The prime minister apologized Thursday for people being booted from Conservative campaign events on suspicion they supported rival parties or groups.

"If anybody is kept out of any of our events that's there to hear our message, then we obviously apologize to them," he said in Vaughan, Ont. "Our interest is in having as many people out to hear our message as we can."

The RCMP has admitted some Mounties helped the Tories eject people, and it reminded its officers their job is to guard leaders, not serve political parties.

Comments on sexual assault by a former judge running for the Liberals in Alberta are "utterly, totally unacceptable," Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff said Thursday.

But Ignatieff won't demand that John Reilly quit his candidacy, saying one "disgraceful" remark does not undo a lifetime of public service.

Reilly told a radio interviewer that a young man's inappropriate sexual contact with a drunken teenage girl did not warrant three years jail.

Reilly raised the rather graphic example as he explained his opposition to the Harper government's expansion of mandatory minimum sentences.

He apologized for the comments after the Conservatives circulated them to campaign reporters.

"I unreservedly apologize for the clumsy example I used during my remarks," Reilly said.

He added: "I want to make explicitly clear that I believe that all sexual assaults should be prosecuted and the guilty individuals should be subject to sanctions."

Julian Fantino, a Conservative candidate and former Ontario police commissioner, said: "Sexual offences of any kind are totally and absolutely unacceptable."

Israel retaliates after missile hits school bus

Israeli defence officials said the incident marked a significant moment that would warrant a severe response

An anti-tank missile fired from the Gaza Strip struck a school bus in southern Israel on Thursday.

The attack wounded two people, one of them critically, and prompted fierce Israeli retaliation that killed five Palestinians.

Israel unleashed airstrikes and tank fire against Hamas targets .

It was the heaviest assault on the coastal territory since a broad military offensive two years ago.

Besides the dead, more than 30 Palestinians were wounded, said a Palestinian official. He said one of the dead was a 50-year-old civilian who was sitting outside his home when he was struck by tank fire.

Three others were militants killed near the southern Gaza town of Rafah.

The fifth man was a Hamas policeman.

Hamas issued a rare claim of responsibility for the bus attack, saying it was in response to the killing of three of its leaders this week.

Tensions have been rising between Israel and Palestinian militants in Gaza in the past few weeks.

Libyan rebels rage

Deaths blamed on NATO friendly fire At least five fighters killed

An apparent NATO airstrike slammed into a rebel combat convoy Thursday, killing at least five fighters and sharply boosting anger among anti-government forces after the second bungled mission in a week blamed on the military alliance.

The attack — outside the strategic oil port of Brega — brought fresh questions about co-ordination between NATO and the patchwork of rebel militias in a conflict described by a senior U.S. commander as a stalemate that could eventually require the Pentagon to reassert more power, and possibly even send in ground forces. The fighters are criticizing the alliance for doing too little to help them.

Young adults delay home ownership

RBC poll finds rising real-estate prices and worries about large enough down payments are biggest concerns among young Canadians

As home prices continue to outpace income growth, many young Canadians have decided to postpone home ownership, the Royal Bank of Canada says.

RBC's annual home-ownership poll found that 55 per cent of Canadians aged 18 to 34 say it makes sense to put off a home purchase until next year. That's 10 percentage points more than the national average for all ages.

Meanwhile, about half of young people who have already bought a home say their mortgage is eating up too much of their income, suggesting their peers may have good reason to wait.

First-time buyers account for a huge portion of all Canadian housing sales, making the demographic influential in determining the health of the housing market.

These buyers are most affected by stricter lending rules and by changes enacted last month that shortened the maximum amortization period for a mortgage to 30 years, increasing the size of monthly payments.

Still, 43 per cent of young adults say they intend to buy in the next two years, suggesting the housing market will continue to be healthy.

"It makes sense that younger homebuyers are waiting to assess all of their options and do their research before buying a home," RBC's Bernice Dunsby said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Home prices outpace income

The national average home price rose 8.8 per cent year over year to a record $365,192 in February. But income levels haven't grown at the same rate. A Bank of Montreal report last month found average resale home prices compared with personal incomes are 14 per cent above the long-term trend. That means mortgage payments are eating into a larger portion of Canadians' paycheques.

For Dollarama, the buck stops here, as prices creep up past $1

Selling merchandise for more than just a dollar is giving discount retailer Dollarama more flexibility against inflation, chief executive Larry Rossy says.

"I wouldn't still like to be selling everything at a dollar," Rossy said on Thursday, after the Montreal retail chain reported fourth-quarter profits of $42 million.

Rossy says higher inflation in the countries of origin of Dollarama's major suppliers — mainly China — is driving up prices of some items.

"So that multiprice environment is allowing us to be more flexible while always being considerate of the type of value we're offering our customers," he said.

Dollarama Inc. has been selling merchandise for between one and two dollars – with some higher priced items – for the past two years. Items that cost more than one dollar accounted for 42 per cent of sales in the fourth quarter, up from 30 per cent in the same period last year, and are likely to reach 50 per cent of total sales.

"It's not going to go the other way, that's for darn sure," Rossy said. "The pricing structure will continue evolving upward, at what speed I am not sure. It will depend on what happens across the ocean."

WASHINGTON. Astronomers are puzzling over an extraordinary cosmic blast in a distant galaxy.

The gamma-ray explosion was observed March 28 by NASA's Swift satellite. Flaring from such an event usually lasts a couple of hours.

Scientists say this blast is unusual because the effects are long-lasting.

More than a week later, they continue to see high-energy radiation spiking and fading at the source.

The burst was likely caused by a star that was ripped apart after drifting too close to a supermassive black hole.

Since the explosion, the Hubble Space Telescope and Chandra X-ray Observatory have focused on the aftermath.

Hubble will observe if the galaxy's core changes brightness in the coming days.

Arthur 2.0 succeeds

Richard Crouse and Mark Breslin debate the merits of Arthur ◐ Brand does well in remake, but the Reel Guys differ on his love interest Greta Gerwig

Richard Crouse: Mark, "Arthur Redux" isn't an improvement on the original, but it isn't a complete waste of time either. I really think your enjoyment of Arthur, the remake of the 30-year-old Dudley Moore comedy, is in direct ratio to your enjoyment of Russell Brand. His brand of Brit-speak verbal diarrhea works in small doses, the trick here is to see whether audiences will sit through two hours of word-play rivalled only by Charlie Sheen on a crack fuelled Internet rant.

Mark Breslin: I liked the movie. In fact, I really liked it when I saw it in 1980. It is in no way superior to the original, but Russell Brand does pull it off, although with far less subtlety than Dudley Moore. The lines are good if not great, but I thought everybody else in the film paled in comparison. Even the great Helen Mirren was no John Gielgud, and Greta Gerwig still seems like she's the best thing in a student film.

RC: Mirren may not equal Gielgud here, but it's almost worth the price of admission to see her wear a Darth Vader mask. As for Gerwig I honestly think she's the best thing in the movie. She's naturally charismatic and as un-Hollywood an actor as we have in Hollywood films right now. She's quirky, cool and without her the movie wouldn't be nearly as effective. The second half, when it takes a turn for the touching, is better than the "funny" first half and she's responsible for that.

MB: Interesting. It's the second, "serious" half of the movie that didn't work for me. Brand lacks the tragic element that Moore brought, probably because at five-foot-two Dudley looks vulnerable (and infantile) from the start. And not to attack Ms. Gerwig, but I didn't get why Arthur would choose her as a romantic interest above all others. She wasn't all that wild or even all that Bohemian. I thought Luis Guzman was a far better match, although that would have been a very different movie. Nice to see Nick Nolte, although his extended cameo does not qualify as a comeback vehicle.

RC: Funny how we've spent very little time discussing the star of the movie. Brand can deliver a joke, unfortunately in the first half of the movie he delivers every line like they are all punch lines. Like the character he's playing, he's not as charming as he thinks he is, but he can raise a smile here and there.

Hanna has style and substance

Hanna
Genre: Thriller/Action
Director: Joe Wright
Stars: Saoirse Ronan, Cate Blanchett, Eric Bana

Fresh off of a pair of serious costume dramas (Pride And Prejudice and Atonement), British filmmaker Joe Wright re-fashions himself as an action director with Hanna. Wright pulls it off admirably, dishing out high-octane entertainment with the same heightened style driven by impossible steadycam shots developed in his previous work.

The almost unfairly talented teen actress Saoirse Ronan stars as the daughter of an ex-CIA cop (Eric Bana) trained from birth for a fight to the death with a longtime familial foe from her father's past (Cate Blanchett). The bulk of the film is dedicated to a chase between Blanchett and Ronan with all of the suspense, gunfights, and endless running montages you'd expect. The performances are uniformly excellent and the plot moves like a bullet. PHIL BROWN

Born To Be Wild 3D
Genre: Documentary
Director: David Lickley

Director David Lickley creates a series of remarkably immersive images of exotic animals and locations that are impossible not to be hypnotized by on the overwhelmingly massive IMAX canvas. The focus is on Dr. Birute Galdikas and Dr. Daphne Sheldrick, who rescue and raise orphaned orangutans in the rainforests of Borneo, and elephants in the Kenyan savannah respectively. It's lightweight, but inspiring subject matter told through extraordinary larger-than-life images. PHIL BROWN

Soul Surfer
Genre: Drama
Director: Sean McNamara
Stars: AnnaSophia Robb, Dennis Quaid and Helen Hunt

When young surfer girl Bethany Hamilton's passion for wave riding was cut short by a tiger shark attack in 2003, it made headlines. She survived of course, but her arm was completely severed below the joint. Her road to recovery, her spiritual healing and eventual triumphant re-emergence as a champion surfer makes up the narrative of Soul Surfer, a fairly saccharine, faith themed bio-drama that is nonetheless stirring. CHRIS ALEXANDER

Your Highness
Genre: Comedy
Director: David Gordon Green
Stars: Danny McBride, James Franco, Natalie Portman

I guess the stoner comedy and the medieval adventure were two genres that were never meant to go together, but you can't blame longtime collaborators Danny McBride and director David Gordon Green for trying. This certainly isn't a cookie cutter movie. Isolated sequences and gags are wonderfully bizarre, but overall the project feels like a failed experiment. PHIL BROWN

Jane Eyre
Director: Cary Fukunaga
Stars: Mia Wasikowska, Michael Fassbender

Of the films based on Charlotte Bronte's beloved 19th century novel of madness on the moors, this may be the most realistic. It's bleak, slow and grim, like life in those forbidding stone piles where Jane has spent her sad life. The deadly artifice of society threatens her as much as her escapes into the harsh natural world outside. Wasikowska isn't up to playing the steel-willed literary heroine and seems mismatched with Fassbender's dark magnetism. ANNE BRODIE

Mulroney gets his own opera

Movie has fun at the expense of former Canadian prime minister ▶ Actor Miller says there is a big split between the legacy of Mulroney and Trudeau

ANNE BRODIE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

▶ Rick Miller stars as Brian Mulroney in Mulroney: The Opera.

Mulroney: The Opera is about to raise shackles in a most entertaining, musical way. It's a bizarre satire that leaves little unsaid.

Rick Miller endured three hours of latex, lip synched to an actual opera singer and took the country's pulse to become this towering Wagnerian anti-hero who was our prime minister.

"I slip under the chin of someone who is almost universally vilified, to find a degree of nuance. I like him more now than I did before," Miller said. "If anything this story is somewhat sympathetic."

"Look, I've spent several months reading and reviewing and watching and living this story. It's a satire. He comes across as vain and arrogant, but he was vain and arrogant."

The story begins in Mulroney's hometown where the seeds of his political future were sown. "He was all doe-eyed about Baie Comeau (Quebec), which was a mill town, an awful place. He had this bright-eyed view of America, a big home away from home," Miller said, adding "A lot of this film is about the delusions of power."

"I slip under the chin of someone who is almost universally vilified, to find a degree of nuance. I like him more now than I did before." RICK MILLER

Miller sees Mulroney's legacy as clearly split and haunted by Pierre Trudeau.

"He is loved and loathed," Miller said, "Trudeau has more scandals than Mulroney, but you can't just look at the scandals. He won more seats than Trudeau ever won. I can hear him now, 'Maybe there was that Trudeau movie on the CBC, but I got an OPERA!'"

Going to Scream camp

Despite being one of the new girls in the fourth installment of the horror franchise, Panettiere fits right in

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Coming in as a new cast-member in the fourth installment of a horror franchise, an actress can't feel too great about her chances of seeing the end credits.

But Hayden Panettiere insists that in Scream 4, no one is safe. She sat down with Metro to tell us what little she could about the movie.

So what are you allowed to say about the plot of Scream 4?

Sidney Prescott comes back to her hometown, and it's the anniversary. Then weird things start happening, and pranks start being made and (whispering) they come back.

And then a lot of people die. But it's like a giant game of Clue at the same time. Who's the killer? Who's going to die next? It plays off of these rules to the new way of making a horror film. Virgins can die now.

I'm not going to ask you if your character dies.

I know. (laughs) And it's so funny because people come in and they ask it, and then they reword it three or four different ways to try to get it out. But nobody's safe. Anyone can die.

And it's a pretty big cast, too.

You've got a lot of people in there. You would literally run by somebody in the Holiday Inn — that's where we were staying — and you're like, "Hey! What are you doing here? You shooting a movie?" And they're like, "Yeah, Scream 4. You?" "Oh … oh. Me too! Who are you playing?"

What was the atmosphere like at the hotel?

Like camp. It was literally like camp. We had way too much fun. It was barely a movie. They were really welcoming. Like, Neve (Campbell) on the weekends would sometimes rent this big cabin on this big lake and invite the cast and crew out. We had a blast.

▶ Hayden Panettiere, right, stars in Scream 4, which opens next Friday.

Stress sending Kate back to smokes?

World's most famous bride-to-be may be feeling the pressure

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES FILES

Kate Middleton

Kate Middleton is under a lot of stress, as her wedding to Prince William is just three weeks away, and sources say the soon-to-be Royal may be smoking again to cope. "Only Princess Diana could understand the amount of pressure this young girl is experiencing," a source tells Popeater. "The fact that she's smoking again isn't helping. She has always enjoyed an occasional cigarette — which suppresses her appetite — and has tried to give it up several times as William hates it. However, as the wedding gets closer and closer, she is smoking more and more."

Looks like Brit is getting hitched

Britney Spears is getting coy about the future of her relationship with boyfriend Jason Trawick.

"We have such a great time together. He makes me laugh, and we are so comfortable being ourselves," she tells Us Weekly. When asked directly if there's a wedding in their near future, Spears teased, "Maybe. Never say never!"

A family friend, however, says it's practically a done deal: "[Jason] was someone she felt she could be her true self with," the source says. "[Marriage] is what they talk about and the direction they're going in."

The joys of Spain

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

There's a first time for everything and, finally, I got to experience Spain.

While it seems like an obvious place for any respectable wine guy, I never got around to exploring what I discovered was one of the most liquidly lucrative countries on the planet.

The Spanish love vino with an appreciation level that might surpass their counterparts in France and Italy. What excited me was that you'd be hard pressed to find a tapas bar packed with anyone other than wine drinkers.

The city of Logroño, in the province of La Rioja, sold me on the level of Spanish wine appreciation. The city centre is known for its tapas and it was an amazing experience to order a bar's specialty and enjoy it with two dozen like-minded souls.

Internationally known Rioja brands are as popular there as they are here, with rich, fruit-infused wines like the 2007 Marqués de Cáceres Crianza ($16.95 - $21.99) offering regional personality. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

The comeback of the food processor

Two new books are giving life to these handy appliances that have been forgotten in many kitchens

EMILY RICHARDS

This recipe makes 2 1/2 cups (625 mL) of salsa.

Cupboards are filled with abandoned small appliances that have left their owners perplexed as to how they can be incorporated into everyday use.

One of those appliances is the food processor.

But, two new books are hoping to change that.

The New Food Processor Bible: 30th Anniversary Edition by Norene Gilletz (Whitecap) guides you with recipes and nutritional information to stand up to your processor, and your taste buds.

Meanwhile, 650 Best Food Processor Recipes by George Geary & Judith Finlayson (Robert Rose) includes recipes from appetizers to desserts.

Check out these two recipes adapted from each book.

Traditional Salsa

Ingredients:

- 1 onion, cut into quarters
- 1 lb (500 g) Roma (plum) tomatoes, cored, cut in half and seeded
- 2 serrano or jalapeno chiles, halved and seeded
- 1/4 cup (50 mL) loosely packed fresh cilantro leaves
- 2 tbsp (30 mL) lime juice
- 2 tsp (10 mL) sugar
- 1 tsp (5 mL) salt (approx)

Preparation:

1. In work bowl fitted with metal blade, pulse onion until finely chopped, 10 to 12 times. Place in a strainer and rinse with water. Drain well. Set aside.
2. In same bowl, pulse tomatoes, chiles and cilantro until desired consistency, 15 to 20 times, stopping and scraping down sides of the bowl once or twice.
3. Add tomato mix to drained onions. Add lime juice, sugar and salt to taste. Let stand for at least 1 hour before serving. 650 BEST FOOD PROCESSOR RECIPES

Brownie Bites

CHRIS YOUNG/ THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ingredients:

- 1/2 cup (125 mL) tub margarine
- 1/2 cup(125 mL) granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) packed brown sugar
- 6 tbsp (90 mL) unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1 egg
- 1 egg white
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) vanilla
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) all purpose flour
- 1/4 tsp (1 mL) baking powder
- Chocolate glaze (optional)

Preparation:

1. Spray miniature muffin pans with non-stick spray; set aside.
2. Process margarine, sugars, cocoa, egg, egg white and vanilla until well mixed. Scrape sides of bowl. Add flour and baking powder; process with quick on/off pulses, just until blended.
3. Spoon batter into muffin pans, filling three-quarters full. Bake in 350 F (180 C) oven for 16 minutes or until tops spring back when lightly touched. Let cool and frost or glaze, if desired. THE NEW FOOD PROCESSOR BIBLE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Red Pepper & Feta Frittata

Eggs for dinner? Of course! With a few staples, you'll have a wholesome dinner that is fast.

Preparation:

1. In a 9-inch (23 cm) skillet, heat oil over medium heat and add potatoes. Cover and cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally or until tender but firm. Uncover and add onions, garlic, oregano, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring for 8 minutes.
2. Add red peppers to potato mix and stir. In bowl, using fork, beat together eggs and parsley. Pour over potato mix, lifting and stirring eggs into the mix with a spatula. Cover and cook for about 8 minutes or until edges are set and puffed. Sprinkle with feta and olives and broil for about 2 minutes or until knife inserted in centre comes out clean.

EMILY RICHARDS

Ingredients:

- 2 tbsp (25 mL) olive oil
- 3 red potatoes, cubed
- 1 bunch green onions, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp (5 mL) dried oregano leaves
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) each salt and pepper
- 1 jar (340 mL) roasted red peppers, drained and chopped
- 8 eggs
- 2 tbsp (25 mL) chopped fresh Italian parsley
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) crumbled feta cheese
- 1/4 cup (50 mL) sliced pitted kalamata olives

The food revolution will be televised — sort of

Jamie Oliver not raw after his show meets resistence in L.A. schools

It turns out that Jamie Oliver's revolution won't be televised — at least not from Los Angeles school kitchens.

The second season of the crusading Brit's healthy eating reality show, Jamie Oliver's Food Revolution, started poorly when the city school district barred his cameras, a serious snag for a program that focuses on school lunches. The Los Angeles Unified School District, which previously had a bad experience with an unrelated reality show, more or less treated Oliver as if he was a cast member of Jersey Shore.

"I think we swam into a minefield," Oliver said. "I'm disappointed that I couldn't get in there at all. I'm disappointed that as public servants, they feel they have the right to not be transparent."

But the trouble didn't end with school officials. There are signs in the first episode (airing on ABC on Tuesday) that the people of Los Angeles aren't fully embracing the revolution either. Only a modest crowd comes out to watch Oliver fill a school bus with a week's worth of the sugar added to the flavoured milk served in L.A. schools (actually 57 tons of white sand).

Oliver dejectedly tells the camera: "This is cold-shoulder stuff."

So did L.A. prove too much for the chef? Hardly.

Oliver remains focused on the multi-national healthy food campaign that has consumed him for more than five years.

"You only have to affect two per cent of the population to make radical change," Oliver said, "and that's what we're talking about, really."

In a TV landscape cluttered with sudden-death er there in part because the British media is more aggressive in shining a cook-offs and flamboyant chefs, Oliver's show has an unusual recipe for success — asking strangers to do what's good for them.

For the second season of Food Revolution, that entails Oliver jousting with school bureaucrats, trying to help parents and kids make better choices and lobbying for healthier food at a local hamburger joint.

Oliver's L.A. experience stands in contrast to his initial campaign to clean up school lunches in his home country, where his allies included then-prime minister Tony Blair. Oliver suggests the fight was easi- light on the dark side of the food industry.

McIlroy, Quiros share the lead

Rory McIlroy and Alvaro Quiros are tied for the lead after the opening round of the Masters.

McIlroy posted a 7-under 65 in one of the early groups Thursday, then Quiros matched it in the final threesome of the day. The long-hitting Spaniard closed with a pair of birdies, sticking his second shot at No. 18 just behind the flag and rolling in a short putt to pull even with the 21-year-old from Northern Ireland.

There were plenty of red numbers on the board, the golfers able to attack the venerable course on a warm, sunny day with only a slight hint of a breeze.

South Koreans Y.E. Yang and K.J. Choi were two shots back at 67. Nine other players were in the 60s. Defending champ Phil Mickelson shot 70, and Tiger Woods was at 71.

Mike Weir may not make it to the end of the tournament. The former Masters champion stumbled with an opening round 4-over 76. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stoughton wants to keep up quick starts

Canadian skip likes to bring early pressure against rival rinks

It's been Jeff Stoughton's trademark at the Ford World Curling Championship to get an early lead and relentlessly defend it.

The stellar execution of that strategy resulted in Canada's first-place finish Thursday among the 12 countries in the preliminary round.

Stoughton, third Jon Mead, second Reid Carruthers and lead Steve Gould intend to keep pressuring the opposition right from the first rocks thrown as they head into the playoffs.

Canada should be able to do that Friday against Scotland's Tom Brewster (TSN, 8:30 CT) because the host team's reward for finishing first is starting the game with last-rock advantage.

High stakes

The winner of the Friday's game between the top two seeds advances directly to Sunday's championship game.

"Hopefully we can score some points right off the hop because that seems to be working really well for us," Stoughton said. "We're not going to change it for tomorrow's game."

Heading into their final draw Thursday night versus Norway, Canada had outscored their opposition 46-24 over the first five ends and trailed at the halfway point in only two games. THE CANADIAN PRESS

IOC RIGHT TO ALLOW WOMEN TO FLY

Opinion

SCOTT RUSSELL
FIELD OF PLAY

Make no mistake, the inclusion of women's ski jumping beginning with the 2014 Olympics in Sochi is a major victory for all females who love sport.

It brings the Olympics, long an archaic "old boys" institution, that much closer to an equality of the sexes. Ski jumping and Nordic combined were the last holdouts on a competition program, which had discriminated against females since the Winter Games began in Chamonix in 1924.

Now, Nordic combined remains the last hurdle to leap over.

"I hope we're beyond the days when people thought there were physiological differences that prevented women from competing in sport," says Dru Marshall, the chair of the Canadian Association for the Advancement of Women in Sport and Physical Activity.

Marshall is also the deputy provost at the University of Alberta and the former national women's field hockey coach.

"This is a powerful statement by the Olympic committee," Marshall stresses. "It moves towards gender equity at the Games at a time when women are more involved in physical activity and sport than they have been at any period in history. These women will be terrific role models."

It's been a long road to get here and not without major bumps.

The only females to appear at the first Winter Games in Chamonix were figure skaters. Sports integral to the Olympics such as cross-country skiing and speedskating didn't see women compete until 1952 and 1956, respectively. The men have always been in at the very beginning. Olympic women's hockey is as recent as Nagano in 1998 and women's bobsleigh first appeared at the 2002 Salt Lake Games.

Balance is finally on the horizon, even though it's taken court battles for women to claim their share of the spotlight. There have been myriad questions about depth and quality of competition. Two failed bids for Olympic inclusion and challenges to the B.C. Supreme Court, as well as the Supreme Court of Canada have meant plenty of disappointment for a generation of aspiring female ski jumpers.

"They have shown great tenacity and courage in the face of adversity," says Marshall. "We're getting close. At the last two Olympics about 44 per cent of the athlete population was female."

Amen to that.

There's plenty of room for men and women to compete in all sports on the Olympic field of play.

The Cleveland Indians squeezed home the game's only run in the eighth inning to beat the slumping Boston Red Sox 1-0 Thursday. At 0-6, the Red Sox are off to their worst start since 1945, when they lost a team-record eight straight to open the season.
